Substitution for an article sought by a legitimate buyer is wrong treatment and bad policy, from a number of points of view. To begin with, the average buyers know what they want, and object to being told that such and such a thing is "better" or "just as good," that the same man or firm makes or bottles it "and it must be all right." The dealer who makes these arguments stands in his own light, and he deserves to be sat down upon and his methods shown

A great many physicians feel that their patients would be benefited by the use of a little good whiskey, and knowing of the reputation and high medicinal value of the "G. O. Taylor" brand, they prescribe that, either the "Old Bourbon" or "Pure Rve." The average druggist will supply it without question; others try to substitute, and others do substitute without saying "by your leave."

The "G. O. Taylor" Whiskeys are getting to have a national reputation; they are generally liked, and they are beneficial when used as the doctors say use them.

It seemed to be the opinion of threefourths of the spectators present at National Park yesterday that the Washington club has been very materially strengthened through the addition of the two new men-Atherton and Barry-and that the team, as a whole, is fully 40 per cent stronger than when it opened the season.

The Washington and Pittsburg clubs shifted the scene of battle from the smoky city to Washington yesterday, and in a well-played game the visitors came out victors by the score of 5 to 1. A concise review of the game would simply say that Billy Rhines could not be hit by the Senators, while Gus Weyhing was comparatively easy. But the nine innings bristled with sensational fielding and hard hitting, and for this reason are worth writing about. Manager Irwin sent his representatives to the bat in the first inning and things took on a roseate color, as two of the batters reached first base without an out being tallied, but a double play quickly followed, and the chance to score went gliminering. The visitors had almost the same chance in their first turn at the bat, but good fielding their first turn at the bat, but good fielding left the two runners glued to their bases. The Washingtons broke the ice in the fourth inning, when "Buck" Freeman found one of Rhines' underhand curves just to his liking and drove the ball into the rightfield weachers for a home run. The Senators were now in the lead and everybody was jubilant, but in the fifth the visitors went to the front and thereafter were never headed.

The ex-Senator, "Pepper" Reitz, started the trouble by hitting a line drive into right the trouble by hitting a line drive into right field that Freeman misjudged, the Pirate landing on third by the time the ball was recovered. Rhines then duplicated the hit with one to deep center, and he also was anchored on third by the time the ball came back. Donoyan's out to Freeman anchored on third by the time the ball came back. Donoyan's out to Freeman scored Rhines. Two more runs were scored by the visitors in the sixth and one more for good measure in the eighth. While these five runs were being made, Billy Rhines was pitching one of his old-time games, and the Senators were being mowed down in one, two, three order. Several magnificent drives were made by Padden and Bonner, but the ball went directly at Williams or Reitz and as these players were in fine fettle, the batter was easily retired. If either one of these drives had varied a foot in its course it would have been impossible to gather it in on account of its tremendous speed.

A large and enthusiastic attendance of spectators was on hand to welcome the Senators back from their successful trip, and also to have a look at the two new men, Atherton and Barry. The former is new at the third corner of the diamond, but the way he fielded bunt hits clearly demonstrated that he will do. At the bat Atherton suffered with the rest, Rhines' underhand ball being too much for him. Barry was out in left field, and his work was of the finest. He made several difficult catches, and his playing bore the mark of confidence, always noticeable in a good ball player. At the bat he placed a nice bunt in the first inning, but he, too, had to quit after this initial effort. Score: Washington R.H.O.A.E. Stagle, cf... 0 = 0 3 0 1 10000000.

about the easlest proposition that confront-ed the Senators of the swelve clubs in the league. This season this order of things seems to have reversed itself and the Pirates are rubbing it in on the Washington club in right good order. The record to date stands four for Pittsburg and two for Washington. Umpires Swartwood and Warner did good work yesterday. Behind the bat Swart-wood apparently missed nothing, while Warner, on the bases, gave the only close decision against the Senators, the double play in the first inning.

The great St. Louis aggregation will be at National Park tomorrow afternoon and an interesting contest can be expected. The "Perfectos" have not faced the Washington club this season, and, strong as they are, the new Senators may fool them. The St Louis grown started off well in the carbon and t

He went on to say that his team would be one of the best in the league before long. He has a notion that the team at present is better than any that has been in Washington for a long time.—Pittsburg

Last evening before leaving for Washington Manager Donovan said: "I feel confident that we have now got down to steady work. The boys are all in the best of shape and the pitchers are in fine form, so that I and the pitchers are in fine form, so that I am inclined to think that we will win more games than we will lose during the trip. We have some hard jobs ahead of us, for although the Senators are looked upon as a tail-end team, they are playing just as fast ball as any team in the league just now. So that if we win four or five games on the trip we will do well. I think that we will get that many at any rate."—Pittsburg Press.
